

Kingdom Orchestra

a Troy Miller x Polyarts Project

About Troy

Troy Miller is a rare talent whose artistry transcends the confines of genre. He has worked as producer/co-writer on albums with Jamie Cullum, Laura Mvula, Gregory Porter, Emeli Sandé, Rag n Bone Man, and Diana Ross. His conducting roles have taken him to the London Symphony Orchestra, Philharmonia, and BBC Concert orchestras among others. Highlights of Troy's collaborations include: Adele, Lu Lu, Chaka Khan, Cliff Richard, Macy Gray, Branford Marsalis, Kyle Eastwood, Gary Bartz, Lonnie Liston Smith, Daniel Merriweather, Suggs, Gloria Gaynor, Grace Jones, Sister Sledge, Q-Tip, Donna Summer, and Mark Turner.

The Story

Troy Miller wanted to create a top quality, diverse orchestra who could cater to new audiences, artists and the space between commercial and classical music, and so the idea of Kingdom Orchestra was born.

The Ensemble

Troy has hand-picked some of his favourite musicians from across the UK to create this new, exciting ensemble to stand as a testament to what orchestral music can and should look like. A multi-dimensional group of performers comfortable performing any genre in any space, they bring a vivacious musical display to all venues, from the recording studio to the Royal Albert Hall.
